UNITY: AUSTERITY

The strength of a giant cable comes from millions of little strands that are united in a common purpose. Alone, these strands are weak, but when they support and help each other they can bear a tremendous strain, for they all pull together.

That is what is needed in Canada; the pull together. That is what will give us the strength to make our war effort fully effective, and courage to face and conquer post-war problems. We must all pull together for one common purpose—a greater war effort and a Better Canada.

We, the citizens of Canada, are the strands that make up the national cable. We, as individuals, have little strength by ourselves but when we pull together, we have strength far beyond our comprehension. We are all interdependent and must work together. Anything that blocks cooperation and united effort must be removed. We must each, as individuals, adapt ourselves to those around us, realizing that our neighbors too, have a part to play, and that it is only by united effort that results will be obtained.

Race, creed, political opinion and personal interests must all be subordinated to the national interest. All have parts to play; there is room for all. But all must have a common purpose and pull one way, so that the cable of national resolve shall be strong and flawless to bear the strain that the coming years will bring.

Let us forget our differences and disagreement; let us put aside sectionalism, class and self interest. Let us concentrate upon those many things that we have in common and gird on the armour of determination to go forward in war and peace as a united nation seeking to make Democracy a living vital thing—Editorial by I. D. Willis.

Motor Fuel Economy

Tests carried on at the Experimental Station at Swift Current show that the draft of one-way discs and moldboard plows increases very markedly with an increase of speed. An increase in speed of two miles per hour increased the draft of the one-way disc by 15 to 20 per cent, of the slow speed moldboard plow by 30 per cent, and of the high speed moldboard plow by over 25 per cent.

An increase in speed of one and one-half times the slower speed required twice as many horse-power to operate the machine, giving a net result that 25 per cent more horse-power hours per acre were required to till the land in the case of the plow and over 10 per cent in the case of the one-way. This increase in power per acre is a definite increase in fuel per acre. Therefore, it is economically sound to pull larger units at slower rates of speed. Most important, however, is the fact that the better job of tilling resulted at the slower speeds. The soil was pulverized less and the trash anchored in the one-way discing at the lower speed.

It was further noted that the high speed moldboard plow used could be operated one mile per hour faster than the slow speed plow, leaving a similar job of plowing with the same draft.

It is believed that high speed one-way discs may be designed with shallower concavity discs to operate satisfactorily at high speeds with a light draft.—Contributed by C. G. E. Downing, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask.
